

What you are agreeing to

Every condition that will apply to your four days in the desert, in plain words — what happens if you cancel, when the money is due, and the one question about altitude we need you to answer before we book.

Segar — the operator in San Pedro sent through their terms. Because you pay them directly and in your own name, those terms bind you, not us. That is exactly why I am reading them for you first, and why none of this is buried at the back of a page. Everything that could cost you money or a day is below.

Warmly, Juan Pablo · Travel Manager, Tourevo

THE FOUR THAT MATTER

PAYMENT DUE	FREE CANCELLATION	LAST CHANCE FOR 70%	PARK TICKETS
In full, and cleared, by Mon 21 Dec	7 days from booking	72 hours before	Never refundable once issued

PAYING

Everything must be received and confirmed 24 hours before your first service. Your first service is the transfer from Calama on Tuesday 22 December, so the money has to be sitting in their account on Monday 21 December. A booking that is not paid by then is cancelled automatically — there is no grace period written anywhere.

An international transfer in Christmas week is not a same-day thing. Start it early enough that a slow bank cannot cost you the trip, and send us the confirmation as soon as you have it.

IF YOU NEED TO CANCEL

WHEN YOU CANCEL	WHAT COMES BACK
Within 7 days of booking provided you booked more than 7 days before the first service	Everything
After that, down to 72 hours before	70% — 30% is kept as the deposit
Less than 72 hours before, or not showing up	Nothing
Park tickets, once they have been issued at any notice, however early	Never refunded

Illness changes this only with a medical certificate — issued by CESFAM in San Pedro, or in Santiago if that is where you are — dated and timed to match the outing, and sent to them within 12 hours of it. Past that window the amount is lost. Even with the certificate, the tickets are not refunded. We have asked them to confirm exactly when they issue your tickets, because that is the moment that part of the price stops being recoverable.

IF THEY HAVE TO CANCEL A DAY

Weather, a road closed for safety, a decision by the park authority. If it happens you choose one of three: another date, a different outing of the same value, or that day's money back.

Said honestly: on a four-day trip "another date" often does not exist — there is no spare day to move Friday into. And beyond those three options there is no compensation. That is their position, and it is normal in the trade.

✓ WHAT WE DO ABOUT IT

If a day falls over, sorting it out is not your job. We write to you the same day with concrete options — part of the value back, an upgrade on something you already have, or a credit — and you pick the one you prefer. You will not be standing in a hotel lobby negotiating in Spanish.

⚠ ALTITUDE · PLEASE ANSWER THIS ONE BEFORE WE BOOK

Friday 25 December spends several hours above 4,000 metres — Piedras Rojas and the altiplanic lagoons. Puritama on Thursday sits near 3,500. San Pedro itself is 2,400.

The operator states they do not recommend going above 3,500 metres for anyone with a history of heart disease, diabetes, epilepsy, asthma or high blood pressure, and the guide makes the final call on the day — they can ask a passenger to sit an activity out.

So: does any of that apply to any of the four of you? Tell us now, in confidence. There is a good version of this trip either way — Friday can be reshaped, or swapped for something lower — but we need to know while it can still be changed, not on the morning of the 25th at the pick-up.

FLIGHTS, AND WHY INSURANCE IS NOT OPTIONAL HERE

Your arrival transfer is timed to your flight into Calama. If that flight is delayed or cancelled, the transfer is lost and is not refunded — their terms exclude it explicitly, and the same goes for any outing you miss because of it. Medical, rescue and hospital costs during the tours are yours as well: if an evacuation is ever needed, the guide can call it, and the bill follows the passenger.

None of this is unusual. It is simply the case for travel insurance with proper medical and trip-interruption cover, and it is worth buying before you pay the balance rather than after.

WORTH KNOWING, NONE OF IT A SURPRISE

On the day

- Pick-up times arrive late. Morning outings are confirmed around 21:00 the night before; afternoon ones around 12:30 the same day. We have asked for the 24th in advance, since Valle de la Luna that afternoon has to have you back for dinner.
- The sunset is weather. Valle de la Luna is a sunset outing and nobody controls whether it shows. If it does not, there is no refund — that is stated plainly in their terms.
- The itinerary can be reordered for logistics. The outings stay; the running order may shift.

The small print, in full

- Drones are prohibited in the parks and reserves. The penalty is a fine plus immediate removal — worth knowing before one goes in a bag.
- The vehicle. Soiling or damage is charged from CLP 30.000, more if it needs specialist cleaning. Altitude sickness on the Friday is the realistic version of this.
- Personal belongings are your own responsibility during the outings.
- Park rules. A passenger who breaks them can have the outing cancelled with no refund.

That is the whole of it — nothing held back for later.

Once you say yes we will send you the operator's own contract in full, in English, and introduce you to them directly so you know exactly who is receiving your money. Anything above that you want to push back on, tell us now: some of it we can still negotiate on your behalf.
